Positive Thinking

The practice of being or tendency to be positive or optimistic in attitude.

Is your glass half-empty or half-full?

Positive thinking doesn't mean that you keep your head in the sand and ignore life's less pleasant situations. It means that you approach unpleasantness in a more positive and productive way. You think the best is going to happen, not the worst.

Researchers continue to explore the effects of positive thinking and optimism on health:

- Increased life span
- Lower rates of depression
- Lower levels of distress
- Greater resistance to common colds
- Better psychological and physical well-being
- Better cardiovascular health and reduced risk of death from cardiovascular disease
- Better coping skills during hardships and times of stress

Rocky Road

Research suggests that eating a little dark chocolate can reduce the levels of cortisol and other stress hormones. This could be thanks to the antioxidants found in dark chocolate. so let's eat?

Ingredients

- 200g digestive biscuits (or Rich Tea)
- 135g butter or margarine
- 200g dark chocolate (70% cocoa works best)
- 2-3 tbsp golden syrup
- 100g mini marshmallows (chopped regular Marshmallows work too)
- Icing sugar, to dust

Optional (up to 100g)

Raisins or any dried fruit, nuts, popcorn, honeycomb

Method

- Grease and line an 18cm square tin with baking paper.
- Place 200g digestive biscuits in a freezer bag and bash with a rolling pin or the side of your fist until they're broken into a mixture of everything between dust and 50p-sized lumps.
- In a large saucepan melt 135g butter or margarine, 200g dark chocolate and 2-3 tbsp golden syrup over a gentle heat stirring constantly until there are no or almost no more lumps of chocolate visible, then remove from the heat. Leave to cool.
- Take the biscuits, 100g mini marshmallows and up to 100g of additional ingredients (dried fruit, nuts, popcorn, honeycomb), and stir into the chocolate mixture until everything is covered.
- Tip the mixture into the lined baking tin and spread it out to the corners. Chill for at least 2 hrs then dust with icing sugar and cut into 12 fingers.

Positivity Jar

A container filled with all items, quotes and mementos that make you feel good. You can use a jam jar, flower vase, shoe box...

Fill it up with pieces of positivity whenever the moment strikes. The idea is to gradually add to your positivity jar, then use its contents to boost your mood whenever you feel the need.

You might like to fill it with:

- Quotes, notes and messages
- Photographs
- Books you have read
- Goals and aspirations
- New people you meet

You can get creative; make your jar as beautiful as it is positive!
